Eradicating Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy Compass Group (Australia) PTY Ltd (ABN 41 000 683 125) (“Compass Group”) and its associated entities.

As part of Compass Group PLC, our organisation provides outsourced food and support services to millions of people around the world every day. We operate in 50 countries across 5 sectors: Business & Industry, Education, Defence, Offshore & Remote, Leisure and Healthcare, more details of which can be found in our annual report at www.compass-group.com. As a result, our supply chains are global, extensive and complex.

We recognise the importance of maintaining both visibility and transparency within our supply chain to continue to protect those who work within it from potential abuse and exploitation and to this end, we take great care in the selection of those companies who supply to us.

Our complex and diverse supply chains are managed through our procurement functions comprising of specialist and skilled professionals undertaking the sourcing and management of our suppliers and in ensuring we do business with suppliers who share similar values, ethics and sustainable business practices including those relating to human rights. The work of our procurement teams is supported by specific training and awareness programs designed to ensure we are aware, can recognise and take action aligned to our policies, procedures and controls.

Policies and Contractual Controls

We are committed to ensuring our employees are subject to fair working practices and are treated with respect. We expect our suppliers to treat their employees and contractors in the same way, and to this end, we ensure that our supply contracts specify our commitments, policies and standards including our Code of Business Conduct and Code of Ethics. Our procurement teams and our suppliers are required to comply with our Global Supply Chain Integrity Policy. This policy is underpinned by a robust set of standards which clearly define our responsible sourcing principles and the values we expect our suppliers to hold. Our policies can be found here.

Due Diligence & Risk Assessment

We continuously work to increase the visibility of the various tiers of our supply chains and embed the respect for human rights that is a key element of our Global Supply Chain Integrity strategy. We conduct comprehensive risk assessments across our supply chain in addition to a rigorous on-boarding procedure which incorporates a developed risk-based assessment of supplier policies and practices.

We acknowledge that suppliers often have their own complex supply chains and we make clear to our suppliers our expectations of their responsibility to adopt and ensure that their own supply chains remain free from abuse. We are committed to reducing supply chain complexity so that any vulnerabilities can be more easily identified and addressed through our sourcing processes, associated standards and risk assessment processes.

We commit to working with our suppliers to assess, identify and remedy any vulnerabilities in our respective supply chains. Any supplier breaches will be fully investigated and where repeat breaches or where satisfactory remedy cannot be achieved, will result in the immediate termination of the relevant supplier.

Awareness, Training & Communications

Through Compass Group PLC, we have developed an e-learning program for our procurement teams which is designed to raise awareness and understanding of the issue of slavery and human trafficking and to support our teams to identify and mitigate potential risks from our supply chain. We complement these programs with additional training and education opportunities with specialist 3rd party organisations as part of our continuous improvement and capability development activities.

For our broader business, our employees and our suppliers any concerns about our supply chain relating to our Code of Conduct, ethical trading practices, modern slavery and human trafficking may be raised through our Speak Up helpline at www.compass-speakup.com.
